

The Historie of

Prince. Well, here is my legge.

Fals. And here is my speech: stand aside Nobilitie.

Ho. O Iesu, this is excellent sport, yfayth.

Fal. Weepe not sweet Queene, for trickling teares are vaine.

Ho. O the father, how he holdes his countenance?

Fal. For Gods sake Lords, conuey my trustfull Queene:
For teares doe stop the floud-gates of her eyes.

Ho. O Iesu, he doth it as like one of these harlotry Players, as euer I see.

Fal. Peace good Pint-pot, peace good tickle braine.

Harry, I doe not onely maruell where thou spendest thy time, but also, how thou art accompanied: For though the Cammomille the more it is troden, the faster it growes; yet youth, the more it is wasted, the sooner it weares: thou art my sonne, I haue partly thy mothers word, partly my opinion; but chiefly, a villanous trick of thine eye, and a foolish hanging of thy neather lip, that doth warrant me. If then thou be sonne to me, here lieth the point; why, being sonne to me, art thou so poynted at? shall the blessed sonne of heauen proue a micher, and eate Black-berries? a question not to be askt. Shall the Sonne of England proue a thiefe, and take purses? a question to be askt. There is a thing, Harry, which thou hast often heard of, and it is knowne to many in our land, by the name of Pitch; this Pitch (as ancient writers do report) doth defile: so doth the company thou keepest:
For Harry, now I do not speake to thee in drinke, but in teares;
not in pleasure, but in passion; not in wordes onely, but in woes also: and yet there is a vertuous man, whom I haue often noted in thy company, but I know not his name.

Prin. What manner of man, and it like your Maiestie?

Fal. A goodly portly man yfayth, & a corpulent, of a cheer-full looke, a pleasing eye, & a most noble carriage, & as I thinke, his age some fifty, or birlady, inclining to threescore, and now I remember me, his name is Falstaffe: if that man shold be lewdly giuen, he deceiues me. For Harry, I see vertue in his lookes; if then the tree may be knowne by the fruite, as the fruite by the tree, then peremptorily I speake it, there is vertue in that Fal-staffe, him keepe with, the rest banish: and tell mee now, thou naughty varlet, tell mee, where hast thou been this month?

Prince,

Henry the son

Prin. Dost thou speake like a and Ile play my father.

Fal. Depose me, if thou dost i-cally both in word and matter, ha Rabbit-sucker, or a Poulters Har

Prin. Well, heere I am set.

Fals. And heere I stand, iudge

Prin. Now Harry, whence com

Fals. My noble Lord, from EA

humors, that boulding-hutch of b of Dropsies, that huge bombard o of guttes, that roasted Manning tro his belly, that reuerent Vice, tha Russian, that vanity in yeares: wh Sacke and drinke it? wherein nea Capon & eate it? wherein cunning tie, but in Villanie? wherein villan in worthy, but in nothing?

Fal. I would your Grace would meanes your Grace?

Prin. That villanous abhomin
stafte, that old white-bearded Sath
